When a company goes from being private to a public one, the structure of the board will need to change for several reasons. Here are a few;

- Governance procedures recommend that there be an equal number or more of non-Exec Directors to the number of Exec Directors.
- The duties carried out by the Exec Directors need to be defined and clear.
- The skill set carried by a current Board of Directors may not be sufficient to drive the business forward through a flotation and beyond.
